Mr. Eliman's admission was made before Commissioner Charles B. Hill of the Second District Public Service Commission when the hearing into the complaint of John A. Connolly against hotels and apartment houses for excessive telephone charges was They have been on the trail now for resumed to-day in the Hall of Records.

The furnishing of telephone service by apartment house owners, Mr. Elman said, is a costly proposition at best. He led his firm to recommend to its clients the removal of all apart ment house switchboards. It ha been his experience; he testified, that apartments can be rented as readily without telephone service.

Assistant Corporation Counsel M. Maldwin Fertig, who represents the city, next sought to bring out that the condition described by Mr. Elli man was due entirely to the shortage of housing. This the witness denied.

"To the best of my knoweldge," he said, "there is no shortage of apartments. My firm and other real estate managers have a bigger percentage of vacancies on our books at the present time than we have had since 1914. My firm alone has 300 vacancies on its list at the present time.
